The FibroCollaborative Roadmap for Change:
*A Call to Action for Fibromyalgia

Please join the staff, leadership and many of your colleagues of the Coalition of State Rheumatology Organizations in listening in to an important Webcast about how we can work together to help improve the lives of people affected by fibromyalgia.

THE WEBCAST

The Webcast will unveil a new Call to Action for Fibromyalgia, a comprehensive roadmap designed to prioritize and address the unmet needs of fibromyalgia in the United States.

The Call to Action is a product of the FibroCollaborative Advocacy Working Group, a Pfizer initiative in collaboration with 16 medical/professional and advocacy organizations. The Group's focus is to improve the health and well-being of people with fibromyalgia, one of the most common chronic, widespread pain conditions in the U.S.

The Webcast will also feature new topline results from a national landmark survey on primary care physicians' attitudes and perceptions about fibro and how it may be impacting diagnosis and care.

Join us at <http://fibrocollaborative.stream57.com/february5> on February 5 for the live Webcast, which is streaming from the American Academy of Pain Medicine Annual Meeting:

Some of the Prominent Speakers include:

- Daniel Clauw, MD, Director, Chronic Pain and Fatigue Research Center, The University of Michigan
- Bill McCarberg, MD, Founder and Attending Physician, Chronic Pain Management Program, Southern California Kaiser Permanente Medical Center

REGISTRATION INFORMATION

Registration information and questions for Webcast speakers should be sent to Anna Khersonsky (akhersonsky@chandlerchiccocompanies) in advance of the Webcast. We will be accepting questions during the Webcast as well.

ABOUT FIBROMYALGIA

Fibromyalgia is estimated to affect more than 5 million Americans. Despite its far-reaching and potentially debilitating impact, fibromyalgia is still misunderstood by many healthcare professionals and patients, leaving many undiagnosed and undermanaged.

Medical experts and patient advocates believe advancements made over the past decade in the understanding and treatment of fibromyalgia provide the foundation for raising awareness and improving recognition, diagnosis and management to improve health outcomes and patient satisfaction.
